The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1,2 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Aude.

Refer to the figure of Aude. Cascaded differential amplifiers which may be read as the n differential amplifiers claimed are shown each having a current source transistor T15,T25,T35,T45 which may be read as the plurality of transistors claimed connected to a current reference IBIAS that may be read as the current source claimed via mirror transistor T81 which may be read as the current mirror claimed. The transistors T15...T45 are arranged on one side of the current source IBIAS which in re claim 2 is on the input side. The above reading may also be applied to claim 5 for the case of one group.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aude.

The difference added by this claim is that the current source is centered w.r.t. the n differential amplifiers; however, the arrangement is functionally equivalent to that of the reference since it would not have mattered where the current source was placed as long as the current is mirrored to the plurality of transistors.

Claims 4 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aude in view of Ingrashi et al.

The difference added by these claims is the separate ground lines for each of the plurality of transistors. However, Ingrashi et al. disclose just such an arrangement in fig. 2 for instance where transistors Q15, Q16 which supply current to respective cascaded differential pairs are each grounded via separate lines. It would have been obvious to apply such an arrangement to the transistors T15...T45 of Aude in order to have shorter leads less prone to stray impedances for instance.
